

The standards set forth in RM-10869 are sufficient to maintain amateur communications in this country for homeland defence and simple communications to other developing countries with out the language skills and equipment.